Thick Coated Paper and a USB for Browsing Combined:

A Promotional Tool

The same company has released a dedicated USB—device combined with thick coated paper as a promotional tool that utilizes the Internet, for use in things such as pamphlets. Made for use with the "USB CLOUD Service", the cost for one would be about 400 yen, with an order of 5000 pieces.

If customers see a pamphlet, etc. and they want to know more detailed information, they just plug the USB Key into their computer, and they will be connected to a website with more detailed information.

The service features a USB Key exclusively for browsing, a tool that can be used for advertising and promotions. The browser simply opens automatically when the USB Key is plugged into the PC . One can directly show a specific audience what you wish them to see without needing to search. Each Key has an individual ID, so the browsing destination can be changed freely; they are expected to be in demand as support for products that use IDs.

From the onset of full-scale sales in 2011, the service has sold approximately 200,000 USB Keys. In 2013, the company is estimating 450,000 units will be sold, including those sold as a paper/card set.
